BY GEOFF BELCHER,
GENERAL MANAGER

The Krewe of Real People: The Next Generation closed out the Mardi Gras season in Hancock County with its annual Fat Tuesday parade on March 1, led by King Shaun Piernas and Queen Deven Sharron.

“We would like that thank everyone for coming out and making yesterday amazing!” the krewe posted on social media on Wednesday. “It was absolutely beautiful.”

The Krewe of Real People formed in Bay St. Louis in 1981, carrying on a century-long tradition of African American Mardi Gras krewes on the Coast, although it was more integrated. Korp paraded on Fat Tuesday each year into the 21st Century. “To be a member of the Krewe of Real People, all you have to do is want to be a member,” krewe co-founder Sandra Price told the Sea Coast Echo in 2003. “To be willing to work with other people. We’re not big and we’re not fancy, but we put our hearts into our parade and all our activities. We want to keep this going for the community to give something back, and to keep the spirit of the season alive for the children. The letters of the name ‘REAL’ stand for Realist, Energetic, and Loving People.” The Krewe of Real People later morphed into the Krewe of Diamonds, which operated

Waveland bank robbery suspect also accused of murder and sexual battery in Louisiana

Assistant Waveland Police Chief Phillip Pavolini lets investigators under the crime scene tape on Friday morning after an armed robbery at the Waveland branch of The Peoples Bank.

A man accused of robbing the Waveland branch of The Peoples Bank at gunpoint on Friday morning has now also been accused of murder in Bogalusa and robbery and sexual battery in Pearl River.

David Huey Restler, Jr., 50, of Vidalia, La., allegedly robbed the Waveland branch of Peoples Bank on Friday morning.

At around 10:45 a.m. on Friday, Waveland police Lt. Chad Dorn said at the scene, a man “went into the bank and held (bank staff) up by gunpoint. He then left with an undisclosed amount of cash, got into a vehicle and left the scene.”

“A short time later, a Waveland Police Department officer spotted the suspect at the corner of Hwy. 90 and Hwy. 603 and began pursuit.”

Dorn said officers chased the suspect up Hwy. 603 to I-10 and

Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality Executive Director Chris Wells on Monday gave a presentation regarding the Beach Outfall pilot project which is designed to “treat stormwater to reduce bacterial loadings.”

Wells said that he is not trying to “force” something on the county and residents and asked for a resolution, either in favor or not of the project. If the county decides against, Wells said he will move the project elsewhere. It is a MDEQ project, not a county one.

It is a proposed pilot project, Wells said, that could be done in multiple locations. It is also part of the oil spill restoration program and funding for the project is from the RESTORE Act.

The BP oil spill occurred in 2010, Wells said; the settlement was finalized in 2016.

During discussions about how to spend the funding, Wells said, one of the recurring requests was water quality, reducing beach advisories, and the pipes.

Wells said that MDEQ developed the “Beach Outfalls Challenge.” He

Diamondhead hosts groundbreaking ceremony for urban redesign project

City, county and state officials on Friday break ground on the first phase of Diamondhead’s urban redesign project at East Aloha Drive.

BY GEOFF BELCHER
GENERAL MANAGER

The city of Diamondhead on Friday hosted a groundbreaking ceremony at East Aloha Drive on the first phase of its new urban redesign project.

“This is the first of many groundbreaking ceremonies in Diamondhead this year,” Mayor Nancy Depreo said, welcoming guests to the ceremony. “This has been a long-time project we’ve been waiting for. It’s a major undertaking. ... It’s the first project in (Diamondhead’s Envision 2040) revitalization plan.”

The project will include curb-to-curb improvements, sub-surface drainage, bulb-outs to create parallel parking for cars, designated golf cart parking spaces and roadway improvements, Depreo said.

Construction on the project is expected to cost $420,000 plus engineering fees, and is funded in part by an MDA Small Municipalities Grant for $150,000 and city general funds.

Jason Chiniche is the engineer on the project, and the construction work will be done by Moran Hauling Inc.

“We’re very proud to have gotten some of our funding from the MDA,” Depreo said, giving a “shout out” to local legislators who made that happen, particularly Sen. Philip Moran.

“We’re very excited to be working on this project, as well,” Chiniche said. “We appreciate (everybody’s) hard work and we’re ready to get started.”

City Manager Mike Reso said the goal “is to create a walkable, Main Street environment (where) residents and visitors want to shop and eat. It will be a place where people want to gather to hang out and build community,” and to “increase commercial development in this area by revitalizing this shopping district.”

Reso said Ron Slade with Orion Planning designed the area.

“The city is leaking $135M in sales annually,” Reso said. “We want to capture those sales locally to support our businesses and to allow our residents to get the items they need locally. New commercial development will also increase sales tax diversion to the city and increase property taxes from new developments. The goal would be to reduce property taxes on all residents and businesses with this new revenue to the city.”

Depreo said Phase 1 will incorporate the area south of the bank all the way to Veterans Boulevard.

Phase 2 will include 10-foot side-

Hope Haven Children's Advocacy Center celebrates national accreditation

Investigators awarded for their dedication on behalf of children

BY GEOFF BELCHER
GENERAL MANAGER

Hope Haven Children's Advocacy Center on Monday hosted an open house to celebrate its recent accreditation by the National Children's Association, but also took the opportunity to honor local law enforcement officers for their work on behalf of Hancock County children.

"We're one of only 13 children's advocacy centers in Mississippi," Hope Haven Executive Director John James said Monday. Having achieved accreditation from the NCA means Hope Haven "has met the very highest standards in the country for a children's advocacy center."

James said Hope Haven served more than 400 children and their families from Hancock and Pearl River counties last year alone.

Hope Haven began in 1995 when then-Judge Ann Williamson recognized the need for a children's shelter. Hope Haven served as a shelter for children who had been neglected and/or abused until Hurricane Katrina forced it to close in 2005.

Later, Hope Hav-

en's mission changed to serving abused and neglected children through community education, advocacy and direct assistance to families.

Hope Haven supports neglected and abused children and their families each year and works closely with law enforcement officials, the District Attorney's office and Child Protective Services in the investigation and prosecution of child sexual and physical abuse cases.

"Our forensic interviewers are there to interview children who have suffered sexual abuse or severe physical abuse," James said. "We do it in a way that is very soothing for the child."

"When a child comes here, our forensic interviewer works with the child (in a comfortable room) to discuss what happened or what's been alleged," helping the child explain his or her situation and deal with the trauma in a safe, supportive atmosphere.

"Before this concept, kids would be taken to police stations and be interviewed, or taken to a CPS office, and that could be very disturbing for the child."

Hope Haven continues supporting the child as long as the case is open, James said.

District Attorney W. Crosby Parker on Monday praised Hope Haven and local law enforcement officials for their work on behalf of the Coast's children.

"This organization,

Hope Haven, and the children's advocacy center in Gulfport, they are crucial (to the D.A.'s office) in working the cases where children have been victimized," Parker said. "The things the forensic interviewers go through allow the children to tell their stories in their own words."

"We want to make sure the wrong-doer is held responsible," Parker said, "but we also want to make sure that the child and the child's family is taken care of."

Sadly, Parker said, federal funding for chil-

WCA to host 58th annual St. Patrick's Day parade

BY GEOFF BELCHER
GENERAL MANAGER

The Waveland Civic Association will host its 58th annual St. Patrick's Day parade this Saturday, March 12, beginning at 2 p.m., with Grand Marshal Carlos Estrella and Colleen, Kylee Adams.

"We're just ready to get with it and have fun," WCA President AJ Andres said Monday.

Andres said this year's parade is set to be the biggest in the club's history.

"This is our biggest turn-out we've ever had," as far as participants, Andres said. "We have 26 young ladies this year, 25 maids and our one colleen, double what we normally have."

The historic WCA was the first club on the Mississippi Gulf Coast to begin hosting an annual St. Patrick's Day parade.

"In 1963, a group of men who met in Villere's on Coleman Avenue in Waveland, decided to have a St. Patrick's parade," Andres wrote in a brief history of the WCA. "They also decided to sell corned beef and cabbage — the proceeds from which would be given to the Boy Scouts. After the parade and sale of food, the street was blocked off for a street dance."

"In 1967, the Waveland Civic Association was formed and chartered. Also in 1967, the St. Patrick's Ball was started."

The first St. Patrick's Day parade was held in 1964, Andres said. The first grand marshal was Joe Griffins; the first colleen, Terri Gandee.

Although the WCA had to cancel the 2020 parade due to the pandemic, it hosted the parade last year with an expanded route, allowing people to spread out more and accommodate social distancing.

"People really liked that last year, going down the beach," Andres said, "so we're going to do it again this year."

The parade is scheduled for this Saturday, March 12, at 2 p.m., and lines up on Bienville, goes down North Beach Blvd., turns up Coleman Ave. to Central, then goes left on Central to Waveland Ave., where it will disperse at the Ellwood Bourgeois Ballpark.

Today, the WCA has

more than 40 members.

"The Waveland Civic Association is exclusively for the betterment of the social, cultural, charitable and benevolent activities of the citizens of Waveland and the surrounding area," according to the club website.

"We're always looking for new members," Andres said. "They can contact us from our Facebook or our website."

The WCA meets at 7 p.m. every Thursday at the WCA Den on Dicks Street.

The den is still damaged from Hurricane Zeta, but Andres said some of the volunteers will be doing a work session after the parade on Saturday to get some of the repairs done.

The work is being paid for in part through float sponsorship in this year's parade.

"We've also had a couple of members donate some money," Andres said.

dren’s advocacy centers was slashed by about 33 percent across-the-board last year.

“That’s something I’m hopeful the legislature is going to make up for,” he said.

Also during Monday’s event, Parker presented two special awards from Hope Haven to local law officers for their dedicated service on behalf of Hancock County children.

James said the awards were for cases worked in 2020 and 2021 — “we’re a little behind because of the COVID situation,” James said, but he wanted to make sure the officers were recognized.

The 2020 award went to Waveland Investigator Jamie Nelson.

Because of Nelson’s dedication, Parker said, the perpetrator was found guilty and sentenced to 45 years in prison, day-for-day.

“This particular case, it dealt with two victims,” Parker said. “This case also involved somebody who had done this to other victims, and not just over a year’s period, but over decades in other states. ... Jamie never stopped investigating, and she not only found other victims, she got them here to testify.”

Parker presented the 2021 award to Hancock County Sheriff’s Investigator Matt Sekinger.

“He did such a good investigation, it led to a guilty plea and the defendant got 30 years in prison,” Parker said, again, day-for-day, meaning there is no chance for early release.

Sekinger got the call, Parker said, “and immediately throws it into overdrive,” doing all the work necessary to get the warrants and evidence needed in the case.

“We were able to find valuable DNA evidence and forensic evidence from computer devices” that helped put the offender away.

“We want to thank you for being able to put the needs of what it takes (to do the job) ahead of your own needs,” Parker told Nelson and Sekinger. “You’re getting these awards for individual cases, but we know, it’s every day.”

Also during Monday’s event, James recognized Hope Haven founder Ann Williamson and her husband Greg — who is still an active board member — for their many decades of service on behalf of abused and neglected children.

Hope Haven always needs volunteers and supplies to help local children. It does not charge for services, but funds all programs through donations from individuals and foundations, fundraisers and grants.

said that 26 teams entered, ranging from high school students to college students, members of the general public, and professionals.

Teams submitted conceptual designs which were voted on by the public and judged by a panel of judges.

There were three winners, Wells said, and the Salt Team was one of them.

In the meantime, Wells said, MDEQ has created a water quality improvement program.

After the winning designs were chosen, Wells said, MDEQ then allocated some of the RESTORE Act funding to implement those designs, “at least in pilot to see if they work.”

“We started with the existing beach monitoring data, one of the programs that DEQ runs is the beach monitoring program and there are 20-some odd stations across the coast where we take routine samples,” he said. “And when those samples show bacteria above a certain health risk threshold, we issue an advisory.”

Wells said that a starting point was “historic hot spots,” those with more frequent advisories, which includes Bay St. Louis.

He said the agency went further to get a more detailed look at the level of sampling and a better understanding of what’s going on.

“One thing that’s important to understand is our approach to this water quality idea is kind of holistic, it’s not a puzzle that we’re trying to piece together, there’s no one-size-fits all,” he said. “There’s no one silver bullet that’s going to cure all our ills. So we want to try and do upstream and are doing a lot of upstream sewer infrastructure improvements.”

Wells said the first location in Hancock County MDEQ pinpointed for the pilot program was the Ramoneda area, which needs some infrastructure upgrades and repairs. He said MDEQ wanted to purchase the creek, but it was cost-prohibitive.

Wells said that when MDEQ engaged with the public about the outfall, “there was significant outcry against it,” and the agency backed out of using that site.

The second site MDEQ selected — in conjunction with the county — is located near St. Stanislaus, Wells said, where there are at least three outfalls with a segment of beach that’s “not really maintained as beach.”

Wells said they spoke with nearby property owners, administration at St. Stanislaus, city representatives and gathered input.

While there was some opposition, Wells said, there was “sufficient enough buy-in to move to the next step.”

MDEQ has completed water quality sampling in the area to verify there is bacteria coming from these outfall pipes, Wells said, that exceeds the health-based risk thresholds.

“Based on the data collection we did, there are some issues here,” Wells said.

Meaning that this area would benefit from a pilot program and qualify for funding, he added.

The next step, Wells said, is further engagement with the public, and he said there has been more “vocal opposition than there has been vocal support.”

“In general, we’ve got a lot of support for this concept,” he said. “We’ve gotten significant pressure from folks to implement these winning designs. And that’s what we want to try and do. But if this isn’t the time and place, then so be it.”

Wells also spoke about the conceptual designs.

“The idea behind this general concept is to employ natural treatment processes in a way that mimics nature,” he said. “The intention certainly is not to create stagnant mosquito-ridden pools. The stage that we are at currently is that we’ve done no final engineering design, we haven’t begun the permitting process that would be public notice and commenting opportunities related to the permitting process.”

According to the preliminary design, there are stone beach weirs which would “increase residency time and improves water polishing through slow percolation, while also providing maintenance, monitoring and public access.”

There are wetlands, which would “filter water though native planting between weirs in addition to providing habitat.”

Finally, there are layered dunes which “attenuates surge while capturing windblown sand. Matrix of roots regenerates vegetation after storms.”

Wells said that he feels MDEQ needs the board’s support — while not required — before moving forward.

He added that long-term maintenance would be the county’s responsibility. But, at this point, there has been no formal commitment from the county.

He also planned to present the outfall pilot project to the city council during Tuesday’s meeting on March 8.

Wells said that it would take “realistically” about two years before MDEQ could start collecting data to compare to pre-construction data to see if it’s improving the water quality.

The board opened the floor for public comment.

Cliff Rabelais of Bay St. Louis, who owns property on Beach Boulevard, said that he is opposed to the pilot project.

“This is a very near repeat of what we did last year,” he said. “We want to do a natural treatment that mimics nature. Last year, it was down near Ramoneda. That area goes through a wetlands. It has a naturally occurring wetlands that drains through there and yet it was one of the high bacteria areas. And we’re going to build one? We got one that exists on the land side where it’s supposed to be. I’m not sure that this is a great idea.”

Rabelais spoke on the project’s aim to improve the water quality.

“One of the biggest water quality issues we’ve had in the Bay St. Louis beach areas, the last couple of years, is they opened the Bonne Carre Spillway,” he said. “And the water quality was terrible. You couldn’t let people go in the water. Now, I have people that rent my beach house that come from the New Orleans area and I had to tell them that. During that time, MDEQ stopped testing the water because nobody was going on the beach. You couldn’t get the data because they stopped testing the water. But, it was nasty, you couldn’t go in it.”

Rabelais said that a beachside water treatment area is not a “smart thing to do.”

“Why would we put wetlands on the beach side where it’s going to be destroyed by the first storm?” Rabelais said. “The beach here in Bay St. Louis is the major economic force in this area. We go out there and we start messing with the goose that laid the golden egg and kill it, it’s going to affect Bay St. Louis. It’s going to affect Hancock County.”

Rabelais said the “obvious” question is, “why don’t we move the wetlands area to the land side?”

“Do it in an area where there’s not a beach and affect our golden goose,” he said.

Rabelais said that tying drainage pipes together will affect drainage in the residential areas of Bay St. Louis.

Andrew Gretzky of Bay St. Louis also spoke and said he is also opposed to the project and didn’t think it would be moved closer to or in town.

“Creating a settlement pond at a drainage site right outside of the church, right outside of St. Stanislaus, right down the street from town is, in my mind, a poor idea,” Gretzky said. “I think it really needs to be handled upstream. The upstream projects are really the way to handle this. Two major problems with this are one, there’s no demolition contingency. Everybody knows when the first Category 1 or 2 storm comes up in here, this is going to turn into a pile of mud. The projects that are given to really justify this are two-fold. One is in Puerto Rico on the west side and it’s a sprawling multi-acre park with a lot less urban burden, a lot less sewage runoff, a lot less street runoff, a lot less pavement than we have here. The other is in upstate New York, it’s really in an inlet in a really protected smaller bay with multiple outfalls that then really kind of flow into the Atlantic. This is truly a project, I guess, when it comes to a coastal community, a Gulf Coast community. None of these areas really deal with hurricanes on a regular basis. That budget deficit would fall on the county.”

Steve Stage of Bay St. Louis said he is also opposed to the project and said he agreed with the previous residents.

“Converting the beach to marshlands is not conserving the beach,” he said. “The outflow we’re talking about right now is running three feet wide, maybe four feet wide, running maybe two to three inches deep, and it’s been a dry period for some period of time, so this is far from high outflow, but it’s typical outflow through a lot of the year, based on my having been on that beach a lot. It flows something less than a foot per second, six inches a second. In short, what we’re talking about is a relatively small amount of water. The water we’re talking about here runs clear, not water that looks bad to look at. Not that I would take a drink out of it, I wouldn’t. But it’s not unsightly water. It flows straight down at low tide at a distance of something like 100 feet with a drop of a few feet. The proposed project talks about deflecting it something like 500 feet along the beach and then another 500 feet out to the end of the Washington Pier jetty. It’s planning to do this all over a vertical distance of less than five feet, which means there’s a very, very shallow gradient in this, which means there’s not a pushable amount of flow. You’ve got a small amount of water flowing on a very shallow grade. I just don’t believe the amount of water we’re talking about is one, a significant source of contamination to the bay; and, two, that it’s sufficient to sustain a moving water feature there. I don’t think the water there would be sufficient enough to sustain a healthy marsh land.”

Bay St. Louis Ward 4 Councilman Kyle Lewis spoke next.

He said that one of the important factors the board should consider is weighing the public’s input.

The other factor, he said, would be the financial responsibility a project like this would put on the county for routine maintenance and also if a disaster does strike.

“We have an answer on what the public desires,” he said. “What we don’t have an answer on is what that financial responsibility would be and I think that’s a key piece of information if I’m sitting in your shoes to make a decision as important as this one.”

Bay St. Louis resident Kathleen Monti said she is also opposed to the project.

“Since January, when we received this proposed design, we have stated over and over and over again that the area between the beach, between the Stanislaus culvert and the Washington Street Pier roadway area has never been renourished by the county for at least 40 years, that we remember,” Monti said. “The county’s current renourishment permit issued by the Army Corps of Engineers is effective until October 2031 and it specifically excludes this same area from renourishment. This underscores our belief that this area has never been renourished using public money. This was not an accidental oversight, it was intentional. As part of the permitting process, the Mississippi Department of Marine Resources sent us detailed paperwork in March 2020, which states ‘there are two areas that have been avoided and will continue to be avoided for renourishment due to the presence of oyster beds or sea grass beds.’ And it also says ‘no impacts to sea grasses, submerged vegetation or oyster reefs will occur.’”

One of those two areas is between the Stanislaus culvert and the Washington Street Pier, she said, which is right in front of her home where the outfalls pilot project is scheduled to be placed.

“Please note that the MDEQ, the MDMR, and the Army Corps of Engineers all signed off on your current permit,” Monti said. “How can it now suddenly become okay to put this outfalls project here and destroy this protected area?”

Monti added that there’s currently “no evidence” that this pilot project would improve water quality.

She said that living across the street from a “potential wetland” is not appealing and is not going to “increase property values” and fears it will “decrease our property values, significantly.”

Brian Connell, who also owns a home on South Beach Boulevard, said one of the things he enjoys about owning a home in that location is the beach. He said he brings his children swimming in the beach all the time and has not had any problems with “ill side effects. He also rents the home to guests.

“There’s lots of natural wildlife that’s been pointed out, birds, fishing jumping around,” he said. “It’s a really nice area.”

He said that there is a beach area there that is utilized.

“People like coming to the beach and that’s why people are investing,” Connell said. “It’s one of the areas that’s promoted on the Hancock County Tourism website, Bay St. Louis website is beaches. There’s pictures of beaches, that’s what y’all promote, that’s what y’all want to have people see and do. And that’s what’s a lot of the draw for my customers, for my house as well.”

He added that this location is not good for this pilot project.

Lisa McCullom said she is a new Waveland resident, and that she thinks the project warrants more thinking. She said she is in favor of “good water quality.”

“I grew up in Southern California, so I’m very familiar with the actual beaches being closed down in San Diego,” she said. “I haven’t been through big weather events...yet. I’m not opposed, I want to hear more.”

She added that she heard “valid” points from the opposition, but hopes that the project isn’t “completely squashed.”

“I don’t know what the alternatives are and, again, being new to this area of the country, it’s all a new environmental dynamic for me,” she said.

Board President Scotty Adam thanked Wells and the residents for speaking and said the board would keep their considerations in mind.

The board took no official action on a resolution either in support or opposition.

‘Little Boxes’

One thing I enjoy about watching movies and television shows is the music. If done right, the music can be just as important as the main characters and storyline. For example, “Star Wars” wouldn’t be the same without the musical genius of John Williams. When I was a teen, almost immediately after seeing a movie at the theaters, I would go to Barnes and Noble and pick up the soundtrack on CD. Nowadays, I go to YouTube to find a certain song. And judging from the comments, so do a lot of other people. I think it’s an awesome way to introduce people to a wider variety of music. One theme song in particular has stayed with me throughout the years, it’s the theme song from the television show “Weeds,” called “Little Boxes.”

“Weeds” was a hilarious and often serious dark comedy about a widow who starts selling marijuana to support herself and her two children. The song “Little Boxes” was written by American folk/blues singer and songwriter Malvina Reynolds as a “political statement about the uniformity, the sameness, which she believed was being fostered by what are now known as ‘cookie-cutter’ or ‘tract’ houses found along suburban streets with identical floor plans.” “Little boxes on the hillside Little boxes made of ticky tacky Little boxes on the hillside Little boxes all the same.” The dictionary defines ticky tacky as “inferior or cheap material, especially as used in suburban building.” After World War II, home builder and developer William J. Levitt created the first mass-produced residential housing development, the Britanica website states. He is also credited with the rise in popularity of the suburban landscape as opposed to the city. He joined his father’s company, Levitt and Sons, Inc., and between 1947 and 1951 built more than 17,000 mass-produced single-family homes on the land. Each home was about 800 square feet and development became known as Levittown. “Any damn fool can build homes,” Levitt is

Hancock History: From the Cotton Belt to the Sunbelt Part I

HANCOCK HISTORY
BY James Keating
M.D.

Over the last four hundred years, the South has possessed the most “distinctive character and tradition” of any of the other regions in the United States. After World War II, the South and Hancock County transformed their previously poor, agrarian economies into robust, modern, twentieth century market places. An analysis of recent economic history reveals four distinctive stages in the period from 1950 to 2022 in Hancock County. This “rags to riches” story demonstrates the inexorable dominance of the “service” sector in the economy of the South as well as in Hancock County and is the subject of this article. Important subjects to be presented include the Stennis Space Center, the city of Diamondhead, the “Magic Casino”, and Hurricane Katrina. In Hancock County, in the 1950’s, a dedicated group of businessmen, some recently back from college or graduate school, joined forces with the Hancock County Board of Supervisors to persuade the electorate of the county to make a major investment into an ongoing economic development program that would build significant infrastructure. First, the county promoted paved roads, electricity, sewerage, water and telephones to modernize its communities. The State of Mississippi had passed the Balance of Agriculture with Industry Act in 1936. In 1963 the county created the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission. This bold project included an industrial park and a municipal airport. A hospital, Hancock Medical Center, was built in 1960 in Bay St. Louis. The foundation of a modern economy was underway by 1980. In this same time frame the Federal Government determined to invest its resources into the South’s economy. Various defense-related programs that included military bases were planted in the Gulf Coast counties and elsewhere in the South. Hancock County workers had been employed at the Ingall’s Ship Building Plant since its inception in 1938. In 1965 NASA built the Stennis Space Center which brought many skilled workers to the county. By 1970 the I-10 Interstate Highway was completed bringing much needed commercial traffic, goods, services, and people into the local marketplace. By 1980, the Hancock County economy was no longer primarily agrarian, a sector characterized by farming, forestry, and fishing (seafood). This agrarian or primary sector of any economy historically includes all businesses or occupations that are concerned with the extraction of natural resources or the production of raw materials. A secondary sector or stage of the Hancock County economy had increased in size that included some heavy and light industries such as the manufacturing of usable products or finished goods. By 1980, there had been a significant increase of population, infrastructure, and construction. A real estate developer, Malcolm McLean, built the community of Diamondhead with $25M which offered the many new workers a modern bedroom community to rival the growing suburbs of Slidell and Picayune. The first stage of the transformation of the economy of Hancock County lasted from 1950 to 1980. The population of the county increased from 11,891 in 1950 to 24,537 in 1980. A second stage of economic development occurred from 1980 to 1990. Thanks to the I-10 Interstate Highway and other previously mentioned developments, the “service sector” of the economy grew exponentially.

An influx of tourists was a significant stimulus to the food and beverage sector of the local economy. Tourism and retirement were now major businesses. A definite shift in dominance from the agrarian sector to the light industry sector to the service sector was clearly visible to all. Wisely, Mississippi and Hancock County increased investment into higher education and public schools. By 1990 the population was 31,760.

A third stage of economic development occurred from 1990 to 2005 dominated by the businesses that provided services to the other businesses or citizens. The GRP (Gross Regional Product) demonstrates the enormous dollar impact of government to the county. The Stennis Space Center had a large Naval Oceanographic office (NAVO-CLEANO) tenant.. The economic impact of the Federal Government and the Military comprised approximately 30% of marketplace activity. The service sector or service industries include government, military, retail, health care, financial services, entertainment and many others. These services focuses on interactions between people rather than the production of goods, but is assigned a dollar value in measuring economy. In modern economies the service sector employs as much as seventy per cent of the workforce.

“The positivity from parents in the community has been overwhelming,” she said. “I cannot speak on that enough, how excited parents are when they come in, they look at our presentation and they look at what they’re standing in and what it could be. And when I tell you parents, I’m talking every walk of life. But to me, what is the most overwhelming, is your mid-to-low-income households. They have been the most supportive of this issue.”

Shiyou said it was “disappointing” to her that “some people are dead set against this, no matter what you do, no matter what you say, no matter what you show them.”

Shiyou, who works at NASA, said that throughout the years, she has seen several executives come and go.

“When they come here from different areas, the first thing that they say, ‘how’s your school system,’” Shiyou said. “Well, our school system is great. But when they go and tour our facilities, guess what? They move to the Pass.”

Shiyou said the facilities need to be updated.

According to the district’s presentation, the prioritization of proposed projects are as follows:

- Pre-K wing, additional playground and drainage improvements at Waveland Elementary.
- Classroom renovation and addition, drainage improvements at Bay High School, relocate ROTC practice pad.
- STEM technology wing, outdoor dining at Bay-Waveland Middle School.
- Replace flooring at Crossroads Learning Center.
- Baseball hitting facility, press box, concessions, and restroom upgrades.
- Softball press box, concessions, and restroom upgrades.
- Football/soccer ticketing, concessions, restrooms, visiting team locker room facility, electrical improvements, drainage improvements at stadium.
- Convert old high school wings to vocational and testing suites.
- Multipurpose cafetorium at Bay High School.
- Gym HVAC, lighting, sound, restroom and safety renovations.
- Auditorium lighting, sound upgrades, and ADA upgrades.

- Convert old field house to Middle School multi-sport training facility and renovating practice field.
 - New maintenance storage facility.
 - Increase classroom sizes at Crossroads Learning Center.
 - Gym renovations at Bay-Waveland Middle School to include hardwood floors and bleachers.
- Shiyou said some of the “high points” include the demolition of a 60-year-old structure, which she described as a “money pit,” when it comes to maintenance.
- “Old facilities have failing sewage systems,” she said. “And some classrooms, they only have one working electrical outlet.”
- Shiyou said that the addition of the Pre-K program and facilities would be able to accommodate about 222 children.
- The last bond in the BWSD was approved by voters in 1998, Shiyou said.
- “Twenty-three years since this district has asked taxpayers to help build new facilities,” she said. “In the last 10 years, over nine mills have been returned to taxpayers. Over seven mills returned this year alone, offset new proper-quoted as saying. “What counts is how many you can sell for how little.”

According to encyclopedia.com, Levitt was criticized for the “mass-produced homes, the conformity of the lifestyle they imposed, and the resulting influx of working-class families into formerly middle-class suburbs.”

“It was his policy not to sell houses to blacks, which he explained by saying that if a black family bought a house at one of his Levittown developments, this would lead to a decrease in purchases by white families,” the website states.

Well, from what I’ve learned about Mr. Levitt, he sounds like an absolute awful human being.

So, I guess we have him to thank for all these houses looking the same, and still having to look the same so that other residents aren’t inconvenienced by looking at something that doesn’t mirror their own home.

Heck, try to build a home that is different than the rest, and you might be stopped by a municipality’s building and zoning laws, because cities and counties also have their own design guidelines for homeowners.

My sister lives in one of those suburban areas where the homes look identical. I’m sure the inside of the homes do as well. It’s hard to distinguish which one is which.

Much like Malvina Reynolds, I’m not a fan of this sameness with homes.

It’s so boring. Why do we all want to live in the same type of home? But, of course, people are very concerned with property taxes and how it might affect the selling price of their home.

Why? Because we have all been conditioned to see this home conformity as the normal.

“And the people in the houses

All went to the university

Where they were put in boxes

And they came out all the same

And there’s doctors and lawyers

And business executives

And they’re all made out of ticky tacky

And they all look just the same

And they all play on the golf course

And drink their martinis dry

And they all have pretty children

And the children go to school”

Here it is again, more pushes for conformity towards a “normal life.” Go to school; go to college; become a successful business person, lawyer, or doctor; get married; have the children; drink the alcohol to numb the pain of existence; and repeat.

I can’t be the only one that is bored of this rhetoric. I too believed in it once. I mean, how could one not, it’s pushed on people at such a young age. I wanted to dress like everyone else, live in a cute little home, etc., etc.

But, at the end of the day, I am still trying to figure out how to escape that idea of “normal” and learn how to be happy being myself.

I also think that the perception of others needs to change. We are all different human beings with different experiences, even though the houses may all look the same.

People expect you to be this happy, positive, door mat all the time and not point out the flaws in the home, the workplace, and the world.

If they’re not pointed out, how do we ever expect anything to change? You can’t joke your way out of a problem nor can you spread “toxic positivity” all the time and expect things to change.

And I suppose, I’ll be the “bad” guy for pointing things like this out.

During the past two years, I’ve listened to people whine about the supposed all encompassing freedoms and cry about missing sporting events, parades, and whatnot.

To me, those types of events are the distractions that the people in charge want. For without those, people can’t really concentrate on things like access to affordable healthcare, equality for all, or just basic human rights.

I know it sounds like I don’t like to have fun, raining on parades and fun events, but, to me, those aren’t the most important things that we need to be focusing on. It’s diversions from the real problems and the real laws that affect our daily lives made while people are out catching beads and dancing to the latest hits in the club.

I don’t want everything and everyone looking the same. You’ve seen one family photography session, you’ve seen them all.

I want to see eclectic homes, clothing, ideas, etc. And I also want to see more of a focus on making the world a better place for everyone, not just those made of ticky tacky.

And a blue one and a yellow one

And they’re all made out of tacky tacky

And they all look just the same.”

Remembering Mercy

C. Gerald Richardson, D. Min.

Sometimes it is difficult to remember that the pilgrimage of the spirit is primarily one of mercy and forgiveness rather than one of revenge and sinners getting what is deserved.

Many people pray for leniency in their own lives while advocating for strict justice for others. The truth is that the message of Hebrew as well as Christian scripture is one of amazing grace.

Yes, there are moments when God seems to be speaking from a position of wrath rather than love. These however, are more likely moments of the frustration of the ancient writers than depictions of the true nature of the divine spirit.

The arc of spiritual movement and maturity bends more toward love and mercy than in the direction of retribution and payback. An obscure text from the ancient book of Micah points to this great truth.

“Who is a God like you, pardoning iniquity and passing over the transgression of the remnant of your possessions? He does not retain his anger forever, because he delights in showing clemency. He will again have compassion upon us; He will tread our iniquities under foot.” (Micah 7: 18)

The ancient commentators on spiritual experience did not always possess significant philosophical insight, but they did have an inner sense of the nature of the God to whom they offered worship and to whom they had dedicated their lives. They understood at a basic level, that their God was one of compassion and grace.

This is an insight which can serve us well in our own modern time. Of course we make mistakes. Sometimes they are not so much mistakes as they are intentional acts of malice or questionable intent. We are prone to allow our animal instincts to overcome our better nature and to create havoc and unfair results in the lives of others.

This may, and often should, generate guilt and/or regret in our lives.

It is important to recognize these moments and seek to make amends when possible. But it is also true that even amid these unfortunate circumstances there is a spiritual power which is beyond us, and that power is capable of offering grace and hope. Sin and failure does not have to be the last word. There is a spiritual presence which is larger than human limitations which declares that our sin is not remembered forever.

This is not a license to live with malicious intent, but it is a means of remembering that grace has the final claim in our world.

The fundamental assertion of Judeo-Christian faith is that of forgiveness. That is a hope worth living for.

walks on each side of the road, decorate street lights, benches and landscaping, Depreo said. That phase will be funded with a Gulf Coast Restoration Fund grant for $490,000 and city general funds.

The Diamondhead City Council approved the 20-year Envision 2040 comprehensive plan last November. It was created by Orion Planning and Design after multiple public meetings with Diamondhead residents. It will include a new town center and millions of dollars’ worth of new business and investment, Reso said at the time.

The East Aloha project will be the entrance to the new town center.

Envision 2040 “is a critical document for our community,” Reso said. “It creates the vision for the future based on residents’ input. It directs the future land use for zoning, ordinances, mobility, capital projects (i.e. roads, drainage, buildings, and other infrastructure needs). A plan of action will be developed and implemented over time to achieve the vision that our residents have imagined through this year-long process.”

into Harrison County. Several other agencies joined the pursuit, including officers of the Bay St. Louis Police Department, Long Beach Police Department and Harrison County Sheriff’s Office, Dorn said.

“They were able to get the vehicle stopped (at Lamey Bridge Road in D’Iberville), and the suspect was taken into custody,” Dorn said.

Rester was charged with felony evasion, armed robbery and three counts of kidnapping, jail records show.

Rester allegedly held the bank clerks at gunpoint and tied their hands, leading to the kidnapping charges, officers said.

St. Tammany Parish Sheriff’s detectives later said Rester is suspected of murdering bar owner Marl Wayne Smith while robbing Smith’s Pub Lounge in Bogalusa. He faces a murder charge and mandatory life sentence in Louisiana in that case.

Rester is also accused of robbing and sexually assaulting a clerk at a Pearl River, La., convenience store on Feb. 27. St. Tammany officials said Rester will be charged with armed robbery, second-degree battery and felony sexual battery in that case.

“Detectives with the St. Tammany Parish Sheriff’s Major Crime Unit began working with detectives with the Washington Parish Sheriff’s Office after they developed information that led them to believe the individual who robbed and physically and sexually battered a clerk at a Pearl River-area convenience store on Feb. 27 was the same individual who murdered the Bogalusa-area bar owner,” according to a St. Tammany Parish Sheriff’s press release.

“Working together, detectives with both agencies were able to identify that individual as Rester, and it did not take them long to locate him.

“Detectives learned that Rester was taken into custody in Harrison County, Mississippi, Friday morning following a pursuit. He was interviewed and confessed to both murdering and robbing the Washington Parish bar owner as well as robbing and battering the Pearl River-area convenience store clerk.”

St. Tammany Sheriff Randy Smith praised all the officers who worked together to capture Rest-er.

“Criminals do not care about jurisdictional lines, which is what makes communication and cooperation between agencies imperative in solving crimes and taking dangerous criminals like this one off the street,” Smith said in the press release. “Thank you to everyone involved for the work they did to identify and arrest this individual.”

As of press time on Tuesday, Rester was being held at the Harrison County Jail on a $150,000 bond on the evasion charge, but was being held without bond for the Waveland Police Department. Louisiana officials also said they plan to extradite him there on the murder, assault and sexual battery charges.

will have more to say at the appropriate time.”

An initial hearing for the case has been scheduled for March 15 in Hancock County Justice Court.

SHORE THING: THE FRONT YARD

Shore Thing
Fishing Report
BY CPT. SONNY SCHINDLER

Hopefully the fish we are catching will stick around for a few more weeks. If you remember, this time of year, for past several years, we have been covered up in freshwater. Fingers are crossed and prayers are being said to keep this salty water in here. This is some of my all time favorite fishing. I'm talking about fishing right out front, not far off the beaches. When the spillways aren't opened and the water stays salty, it as an absolute free-for-all of quality and quantity. Sheepshead, puppy drum, redfish, speckled trout and flounder are all in close. The nearshore reefs that Department of Marine resources had put in from Pass Christian to Bayou Caddy should stay loaded with fish. My favorite aspect of this type of fishing has two parts. First, it's a short run. You can be fishing minutes after getting in the boat. On those chilly or choppy days, it's a game changer. Second, you honestly don't know what you're gonna catch. If you're fishing with live or dead shrimp, it Could be a 12 inch throw back trout one cast, and a 40 Pound drum on the next one. It really is exciting not knowing what's gonna bite your hooks next. It's not too difficult fishing, but you will need to bring plenty of extra tackle. Fishing these reefs, it's just part of it to loose tackle to the structures. We've always done well during bigger swings of the tide, but they still produce fish in most any condition. These areas can and will get crowded, so please be courteous to other anglers. Please don't get too close to the other anglers who arrived before you. If the reef is just too crowded, I'd recommend just heading on down to the next one. I'd imagine if things stay on the same track, all of the nearshore areas will hold fish. There's plenty of room and fish for everyone to play, right out in the Front Yard.

Hancock, Rocks, Lady Tigers, & Lady Hawks get wins on diamonds

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II
STAFF WRITER

With warmer weather on the horizon, afternoon rainstorms, and those small almost invisible insects with razor sharp fangs called gnats back on the prowl, it must mean that baseball and softball action is heating up on the diamonds throughout the county.

Baseball

Despite being out for a brief Mardi Gras holiday last week, all area teams were busy on the hardball diamond.

The Bay High Tigers (0-7) dropped their game with Hancock 12-2 on Friday, March 4.

The Hawks (3-6) got a complete game performance from Ryan Ladner who threw five innings with one strikeout, three hits and two earned runs.

Peyton DeWitt had three hits and three RBIs while Tanner Ladner has two hits and two RBIs. Ryan Ladner added two RBIs on a double and Blaine Knight had two hits and three RBIs.

Hancock head coach Anthony DeWitt stated,"The guys got going on a big inning and the energy lasted throughout the game. We hope this is a springboard to success for us. We have been playing decent but we needed to have success to string things together."

The Tigers made three costly errors in the second inning when the Hawks scored eight of their runs.

Xander Ladner had two hits for the Tigers while Walker Seymour drew two walks.

Bay High head coach BJ Corr commented, "We gave up a big inning that put us in a hole early. We have been getting some strong performances from Ethan Kingston, Braden Necaie, and others, but we have to put together some hits and runners on base."

The Saint Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws traveled to Mobile to participate in a tournament hosted by McGill-Toolen.

The Rocks (2-6) picked up a 13-2 win on Saturday to end the tournament on a good note. The Rocks dropped games with Pensacola Catholic 6-4 after being up 4-2; Catholic High 14-2; and, McGill-Toolen 6-4 after being up 4-0.

Pass Christian picked up three wins over the week including a 9-4 win over Hancock, 13-5 over Hattiesburg, and a 2-1 decision over Meridian.

Softball

On the girls' diamond, Bay High topped Long Beach 8-5 despite committing six errors in the game and fell to Poplarville 15-8.

Hancock picked up a 7-1 victory over Poplarville to push their record to 5-1. Adrianna Cuevas went 2-for-4 at plate, Aubre Martin was 2-for-3 and Brooklyn Cuevas was 3-for-4. Cheyenne Tyson was 3-for-4 with 4 RBIs and Teegan DeWitt was 2-for-4 with one RBI. DeWitt also came in at relief and pitched last five innings and struck out 8 batters and didn't allow a hit.

OLA (1-5-1) lost to Gautier 16-5 and Ben's Ford Christian 23-21. In the latter game, Sydney Burrell had 4 hits and 3 RBIs while AnnaLaura Williford had 3 hits and 5 RBIs. Merina Aime and Rylee McCaffrey each had 2 hits and 3 RBIs. Haley Cox added a double.

DWGAN Golfing News from January & February of 2022

BY SHIRLEY HALTERMAN

January brought us such cold and rainy weather that only one event was able to be played. After two Tuesday of 40 degrees or colder and rainy weather, we finally got our competition in on Tuesday, January 18th. The game was "Two Person Alternate Shot" and was played on the front nine of the Cardinal course. The hearty souls that played and won the Low Net Team honors were: First Place - Mary Craig Murray and Judy Tauzin with a team score of 34; Second Place - Dinah Knobloch and Nancy Sislow with a score of 37; and in Third Place - Gale Lammers and Therese Mauterer with a score of 38. Nice going gals!

The following Tuesday didn't bring us any better weather being in the mid 40s but also being very windy and rainy. We sure were glad when January was gone!

Then, along came February, and while not too much warmer at least our days were sort of sunny. Tuesday, February 1st, while chilly, the rain held off until we got in our monthly Trophy Day. Seventeen gals came out to play and the competition was held on the back nine holes of the Cardinal Course. LOW GROSS WINNERS were: Flight One - 1st Place = Ann Nutting and 2nd Place going to Therese Mauterer; Flight Two - 1st Place = Pat VanDervort and 2nd Place was taken by Sue Hebert; and Flight Three - 1st Place = Brigitte Becker and 2nd Place was awarded to Jeri Harris. When it came to the LOW NET competition, Flight One - 1st Place = LaDonna Brown and 2nd Place = Kathie Pierson; Flight Two - 1st Place = Shirley Halterman and 2nd Place = Judi Brannan; and Flight Three - 1st Place = Pattie Blackwood and 2nd Place = Dolores Louvier. During this round we also compete for LOW PUTTS, LONGEST DRIVE and CLOSEST-TO-THE PIN. And, those winners were as follows: Low Putts - Flight One - Kathie Pierson - Flight Two, Judi Brannan and Flight Three, Pattie Blackwood. For Longest Drive it was; Flight One - Therese Mauterer, Flight Two - Susie Fontenot and Flight Three - Brigitte Becker. Those getting Closest to the Pin were: Flight One - Toni Rossol, Flight Two - Sue Hebert and Flight Three - Brigitte Becker. None of our gals managed to score Chip Ins or Birdies during this round.

Sixteen gals turned out to play "Throw Out the Three Highest" on the back nine holes of the Pine course on February 8th. Those who triumphed were: First Flight - 1st Place = Judy Tauzin, 2nd Place = Toni Rossol; Second Flight - 1st Place = Nancy Sislow, 2nd Place = Dinah Knobloch and in the Third Flight - 1st Place = Pattie Blackwood, 2nd Place = Carole Griffin.

Believe it or not, we got to play again on the 15th of the month and had 24 gals show up to compete in a two-person "Best Ball" competition on the back nine of the Cardinal. Those LOW NET TEAM WINNERS were: Flight One - 1st Place, Ann Nutting and Therese Mauterer; 2nd Place, Kathie Pierson and Toni Rossol. Flight Two - 1st Place, Marlene Gossard and Kathy Jones; 2nd Place, Brigitte Becker and Pat VanDervort. Flight Three - 1st Place, Jerry Ingraham and Lenna Weisenhorn; 2nd Place, Sylvia Corban and Dinah Knobloch. Seems like we are finally getting back in the swing of things.

On Tuesday, February 22nd, we were again favored with good weather for our "Scramble" on the front nine of the Cardinal. The Low Gross First Place Team consisted of Mary Alice Harfoush, Gale Lammers, Therese Mauterer and Cheryl Saak. While the Second Place Team was made up of Dinah Knobloch, Judy Tauzin, Pat VanDervort and a ghost. Our Third Place Team (in a scorecard playoff) was Sylvia Corban, Barbara Linville, Toni Rossol and Pauline Singer. In addition, Betty Perry scored a Birdie on Hole #4. Sure looks like we are back to golfing. Hurray Spring!!

for 12 years in the Bay before the children and grandchildren of the original Real People founders took over with the Krewe of Real People -- The Next Generation, which first paraded in 2018.

One of the new features for this year's parade was the 100 Women DBA Group, which marched, continuing a proud local legacy.

In the 1930s, the 100 Men's Benevolent Association sponsored Mardi Gras parades and an annual Carnival Ball.

In a Feb. 11, 2001 Sea Coast Echo article written by Bennie Shallbetter, Bay St. Louis resident Alvina Nichols (who passed away in September 2016 at the age of 90) recalled her father James "Sun" Rosemond.

Just like in the New Orleans Indian parades, the men dressed in hand-made Native-American style finery, complete with buckskin and feathered head-dresses.

"Daddy would start weeks ahead getting his Indian wig ready," Nichols said.
